ROUGH AROUND THE EDGES

When we students step onto Trevecca's campus for the very first time, we are a little ROUGH AROUND THE EDGES—not only in our career skills, but also in many other aspects of our lives—be it self-awareness, character, spirituality, or even relational skills. When it comes to our career paths, some of us may know which direction we are headed; others simply start taking general education classes and hope that they can figure out which direction they are headed by the end of the year. We may only come to college hoping to sharpen ourselves academically, but most of us will leave Trevecca changed in many other ways than we expected.

At the beginning of college we are unpolished, we lack refinement, and our future plans are works in progress. We haven't quite mastered the skills needed for our career paths. But as we progress through college, we learn what it takes to prepare for our career. We sharpen our skills. Not only do we sharpen our academic skills, we also sharpen the other areas of our lives too. We grow and learn from our professors, our friends, and our mentors. Those persons shape us in the way that Proverbs 27:17 describes: "As iron sharpens iron, so one man sharpens another." As we progress through college, may we not simply sharpen our career skills, but may we sharpen one another and be better people for the experiences that we have during our time at Trevecca.

PROLOGUE FROM THE PRESIDENT

I like the router. Among woodworking tools, it is one of my favorites. It is the tool that craftsmen run along the edge of a board and shave off the squared edge leaving a gentle rounded edge. It makes a board look like a piece of the whole. It also keeps the jagged edges from splintering.

College may be a router. It takes the edge off intellectual arrogance when freshmen who came in knowing everything leave humbled by all they don't know. It takes the edge off awkward social skills by offering years of practice in the fine art of getting along with others. It takes childish, cliché-ish, careless thoughts about God and runs them through the blade of biblical study and orthodox Christianity. It takes sloppy thinking and turns it into a pile of sawdust left behind.

Routers round the edges and make the whole better. And when it comes down to it, it is the whole person being fitted together and resembling Jesus that matters. Bring on the routers.

Dan Boone

DEDICATION

MICHAEL JOHNSON

The 2010 Darda is dedicated to Michael Johnson, public liaison for the Office of the President and coach of the women's golf team. For 12 years he served as associate dean of students for community life.

"Michael Johnson is a man who wears many hats, has lots of business to attend to, and has many people to please. Lucky for us and those around him that he has a genuine regard for others. Coach is the kind of guy who is going to greet you with a handshake (or in my case an unexpected hug) and a smile that says, 'I am glad to see you.' Coach Johnson is a great guy with a big heart, and I think that everyone who meets him feels the love. He shows our team an abundance of love and respect, and I hope we show him the same amount of gratitude." -Alyssa Moe

"Something really cool about Coach is his deep care and concern for people. He has a genuine desire to build relationships with all sorts of people, and it shows through in every aspect of his life. Those of us on the golf team have seen firsthand his interest in others in the way he starts up conversations on the golf course, in a restaurant, or with other coaches. I think it's a pretty accurate statement to say he's never met a stranger." -Betsy Beaver

"Passionate about People. Meeting them, loving them, and helping them. Dean Johnson's greatest strengths lie in his amazing ability to love someone enough to be able to tell that person the truth. I don't know how many times he has told me that I was talking too fast for just about anyone to understand. This single strength makes DJ an integral part of this family at Trevecca." -Jared Usrey

WELCOME WEEK

Kicking the year off right!

The first week of college can be intimidating—especially for incoming freshmen, but also for returning students. Welcome Week offers a series of activities to help students acclimate themselves to college life. The activities can be outrageous, messy, exciting, and fun; students can't participate without cutting loose and allowing themselves to act crazy. The anxiety that comes with the beginning of school slowly melts away as the students allow themselves to break free of their concerns of what people might think of them. By the end of the week, everyone is ready for the new year and for whatever it may hold.

Jake Hagood, Stefanie Wienecke, Gregg Baggett, Mandy Goon, and Kevin Whitsett helped kick off Welcome Week with the all-school praise and worship service.

Trevecca took Nashville Shores by storm this year. Students had the chance to hang out poolside, race down slides, and just have fun in the sun as they reunited with good friends.

Team Jake Hagood nailed it this year, quite literally, at Monday night's dodgeball tournament.

Kicking the year off right!

Purple Pandemonium is a great time for TNU students to come out and support the teams.

Every year students expect Welcome Week to provide activities that will excite them and have them looking forward to the next night. The week starts off with all-school praise and worship, a tradition that is one of the foundations of the first week of school. Purple Pandemonium, the dodge ball tournament, and the slip-n-slide also were part of the week. Celebrity Skate Night, though, was once again the big hit of the week, involving almost 400 people. Monday night was SGA's Feliz Cumpleanos Fiesta for Dr. Boone's birthday; it was hailed a success. Other new additions included a trip to Nashville Shores and a paint war. "Everyone wore their white Welcome Week t-shirts and got to decorate them themselves. It was mass chaos and only lasted about five minutes, but it was so much fun," director of social life, Emily Rowden, commented about the new activity. The week reached its potential and created an atmosphere that pleased everyone.

Paint wars was a new addition to Welcome Week this year, and it was a hit! Students had a blast getting messy, and it made for some of the most memorable t-shirts yet!

An annual favorite, the slip 'n slide is always sure to bring fun times, lots of laughs, and some of the best bruises and scratches this school has ever seen!

Michael Louderback and Cassie Hamilton, or Adam and Eve as seen here, definitely get kudos for a creative costume for this year's Celebrity Skate Night!

SONG- WRITERS' NIGHT

A time for Trevecca's talent to shine

Trevecca students are gifted in many different areas and are often given the chance to showcase their talents. At the end of February, SGA hosted the Songwriters' Challenge, a competition for students who enjoy creating their own music. Try-outs were open to all students, and eight contestants were chosen to participate in the competition. They practiced with the band the week before they took the stage. The three judges for the event were Eric Vinson, a former music student; Kim McLean, Trevecca's instructor of songwriting; and David Diehl, chair of the Department of Music. At the end of the night, Stephanie Wienecke and Jake Hagood were the two contestants left standing.

Songwriter contestants: Lauren Brown, Andrea Corzine, Andrew DeKemper, Jake Hagood, Nick Schwarz, Stefanie Wienecke

Stefanie Wienecke sings one of her original songs and receives rave reviews from the judges.

We often see talents like Andrea Corzine in other settings, such as in chapel or Benson Brew, but this night is a cool way for her to showcase her original work.

Songwriters' Night was a great boost of confidence for Jake Hagood when Kim McClean told him that he has the X factor. Jake is still smiling from that comment!

Last year's winner, Mark Sloan, came back for a second time to delight the crowd with more of his original music.

Trevecca hosts many popular events, but Trojan Idol leads the pack in bringing the student body together. Held November 19 and 21, Idol has always been heavily attended, and the organizers of the show were not disappointed with this year's audience.

T. J. Adams, Lauren Boyer, Jake Hagood, and Parker Guthrie started the night with a tribute to Michael Jackson. As the evening went on, the contestants were narrowed down to the final two; by the end of the night Parker Guthrie was crowned the 2009-2010 Trojan Idol.

Trojan Idol contestants wait in suspense to see who the top five were for the second night of Trojan Idol.

COURTSHIP WEEK

Matchmaking at its finest

The feelings that many students have leading into Courtship Week can be summed up with the line from the movie in the quad's feature, You've Got Mail: "There is the dream of someone else." With its many date-night events, Courtship Week provides many opportunities for students to get to know that special person better—opportunities that open eyes and helps the sharing of dreams. Coldstone provided free ice-cream on Monday for a date night. Old School Bingo Night was a hit on Tuesday. This new activity included students' dressing up as old folks for "As Seen on TV" prizes. The remainder of the week included old favorites, like The Dating Game and Movie-in-the-Quad Night, and new ones, including bowling night. Students enjoy the carefree feel of the week, and everyone hopes for a Meg Ryan and Tom Hanks happy ending.

THRIFT STORE PROM

A night for the penny-pinching college student

All high school students look forward to prom night: dressing up and having fun with friends and that special someone. Thrift Store Prom Night embodies that adolescent excitement with a few twists: students ice-skate instead of dance, and tacky outfits are a must. Couples and friends enjoy finding outfits that clash, putting together a mish-mash of colors and fashion styles until their ensembles receive laughter from all who see them.

Flocking to Southern Ice Arena, whether they can actually skate or not, students enjoy seeing the parade of ridiculous outfits. January 15, topping off the spring semester's welcome back week activities, Thrift Store Prom Night is organized by the Social Life committee, who works hard to create fun and unusual events for the students. Every year, a prom king and queen are announced, based on how outlandish their costumes are. This year Kevin Wilkerson and Samantha McDonald were crowned king and queen of the Thrift Store Prom.

"Thrift store prom night is one of my favorite events of the year. Dressing up and ice skating is so much fun . . . except for when I biff it in front of everyone."

HOMECOMING

Andrew Andreotta, Jonathan Robbins, David Tigabu, Josh Fletcher, and Josh Mackens spot something off in the distance after Trojan Madness.

Every year in late fall an event takes place which is unlike any other. The whole campus takes part in Trevecca's Homecoming celebration: each class, SGA, the alumni department, drama, and others. This year, following with the traditional schedule, the Founder's Day chapel was held Friday morning with a panel of past and present professors. The Homecoming parade began Friday afternoon, with floats from all four classes, with the exception of the senior class, who rode in a car because they had "senioritis." The drama department finished its second week of Seussical, well-attended and well-liked. On Saturday the men's and women's basketball seasons kicked off; both teams achieved wins for Trevecca.

The excitement on the faces of Nneka Sparks and Brad Stuckey convey their enjoyment during the Homecoming parade.

Tennessee Hall girls represent their dorm by riding on the float in the Homecoming parade on Friday afternoon.

Past, present, and future Trevecca students come out every year for Homecoming. This year it was an honor to have the class of '59 take part in the festivities!

HOMECOMING

The upperclassmen guys are dressed to impress for the Homecoming banquet.

Homecoming is not just for current students; every year, many alumni return to reacquaint themselves with a time in their lives that was unlike any other. At the Founder's Day Chapel on Friday morning, beloved professors reminisced about their students and classes from past years and how they have influenced and been influenced by them. Eighteen different reunions for alumni brought some from as far away as Alaska to return to their alma mater. The baseball reunion welcomed 115 guests, and the Madragalian reunion had 80 alumni in attendance. Alumni eagerly flock to Trevecca to reconnect with old friends who can relive Trevecca's past and enjoy its present.

This year's Homecoming basketball game against Point Loma was neck and neck, but our guys came out with the victory! They made us all proud to be Trevecca Trojans!

Trojan Madness was a night of getting pumped up with school spirit for the basketball games. It was a night of fun and games, and these girls had the chance to show their endurance, Trevecca style!

FRIDAY NIGHT LIVE

A favorite of TNU students

As the year comes to a close and students prepare for finals, anticipation begins to build. Friday Night Live, or FNL, began twelve years ago, an inspired idea that was influenced by Saturday Night Live. FNL has become Trevecca students' favorite event. Directed by Emily Rowden, social life director, and Austin Johnson, head writer for the event, the show had everyone in tears by the end of the night. Six more writers joined Johnson: Kevin Wilkerson, Todd Osborne, Andrew Hall, Maddie Privott, Cassie Hamilton, and Tyler Greene. That group created an amazing night of hilarity for Trevecca's campus. With a diverse group of actors, skits, and parodies, ranging from a mash-up of Lady Gaga songs to the returning favorite "Weekend Update," reported by Austin Johnson and newcomer Meredith Fitzsimons, the audience and the cast pronounced FNL 2010 a fantastic success. Rowden said, "FNL was a crazy, spectacular event that took a lot of dedication and coordination from everyone involved in order to make it our best year yet! The show was ten times better than any of us expected, and having Andy Davis as our musical guest, as well as the additional NSLC members in the audience, added to the energetic dynamic of the event. "

The Friday Night Live cast poses at the show's conclusion.

FNL is one of the highlights of the year because students are able to come up with new skits or put a new spin on old SNL favorites, such as the Target Lady, played here by Charlie Moore.

In FNL the more ridiculous the better. For example, Andrew Hall took his shirt off more than we ever wanted him to, and here Jerry Romasco is pulling off the hot dog look well.

Owen Henry was doing us all a favor by explaining the difference between social and anti-social dancing. We all took note and now understand what NOT to do in a social setting.

JUNIOR/ SENIOR

Celebrating the students' success

Juniors and seniors show how much they enjoy their banquet by the big smiles on their faces.

Trevecca students are talented at upending the social norm. This year the junior class saw an opportunity to put two fun activities together to create the perfect night. On April 30, the 2010 Junior/Senior Banquet was held at the Nashville Zoo—much to the students' surprise and excitement. It was hard to secure the venue, but everything fell into place to give the students' one of the most memorable evenings they could experience. The junior class council was in charge of pulling everything together. "I was trying to find a place that would be so much different than past years so that it would be harder to compare it to past years. I was trying to get away from the typical hotel-ballroom-type banquet. I figured that the zoo would be fun and different," explained Jackie Winkle, junior class president. Catered by the zoo, a dinner of chicken, pork, and potatoes with dessert made by Jackie was served on the jungle terrace. After the banquet, zoo personnel brought out animals so that participants could have their pictures taken with the animals, the carousel was opened for attendees to use, and a photo booth was set up to capture moments of friendship and fun. Junior/Senior 2010 has become the new standard for future events to live up to.

Jennifer Jasmin smiles for a picture as she rides her animal of choice, the dolphin, on the carousel.

LOW WITH THE FLOW

Just Glow with it

The team has their glow sticks and is ready to dominate in capture the flag.

In the past years Glow with the Flow has lit up the campus literally—as students holding glow sticks illuminated the Quad while they listened to an eclectic playlist of the newest hits and old favorites. This year SGA decided to make the event a competitive game, inviting students to the practice fields to play. Participants were divided into four groups, and each was given a different color glow stick. The teams were given candles and water and challenged to douse the other groups' candles while protecting their own.

“We played twice on the practice field and then took it to the entire campus,” social life director Emily Rowden explained. The new twist on Glow with the Flow was embraced by many students, who played the game long into the night.

Glow with the Flow is a great chance for people to celebrate the end of the year and spend some last moments with friends before summer and graduation.

With the new Glow with the Flow structure, students have a chance to run out all of their built-up energy from finals while having a blast with friends.

109TH COMMENCEMENT

Graduates receive diplomas on a beautiful Saturday morning

On the beautiful Saturday morning of May 8, 2010, students marched into McClurkan Quad where a crowd of more than 7,000 gathered. Carol Maxson, associate provost and dean of academic affairs, presented the challenge to the graduates. Afterward, three graduates responded. Lauren Spears, senior class president, spoke for the traditional students; Christopher Kearney represented graduates of the degree-completion programs; and Kristi Marshall responded for the graduate students. President Boone then congratulated each of the seniors as they were awarded their diplomas. After all diplomas were awarded, the 2010 Citizenship Award, the highest honor given to a Trevecca senior, was presented to Jerry Romasco. To conclude the ceremony, senior Joseph Jared led the singing of the Alma Mater, and the new graduates marched out with smiles on their faces, excited about their accomplishments. The class of 2010 consisted of a record-breaking group of 948 students.

Graduates have just marched in to their seats and wait anxiously to receive their diplomas as the ceremony begins.

SPIRITUAL LIFE

Sabra Henderson, Section Editor

Summer break is a time which students eagerly anticipate; no papers or grades, just work and relaxation. Some students, however, sacrifice that enjoyment in service to others. Some of them spend their summer working with Youth in Mission, an organization that gives college students who sense a call to missions the opportunity to travel to countries that are in need of their help. After a very rigorous selection process and a week of training, students are sent out as Christian ambassadors to assist and love others as they believe Christ would.

This past summer nine Trevecca students were selected to minister in Australia, India, the Solomon Islands, Mozambique, and Saipan. Those who were assigned to India helped teach at an after-school program at the Child Development Center. In the late evening, they visited the children and church families. The team grew very close to each other and to the people they helped. Of her experiences in India, Tamra Reaves said, "Everything was so different. We became friends with the children we helped teach every day, and we were welcomed in the homes of the people in the churches we attended. We were living life with the people around us." In Saipan, the team taught English to Chinese women who were the victims of domestic abuse and sex-trafficking. Team members also spent a lot of time with the children and youth at the village's high school.

SUMMER TAG '09

Trevecca Around the Globe in Poland and Nicaragua

Trevecca TAG students led VBS activities with the kids.

As they enter college, students begin to broaden their horizons, figuratively and literally. Trevecca has always strived to aid young adults in their quest to connect with people who may seem to be completely different from them but who share a bond in Christ that overcomes all obstacles. Trevecca Around the Globe (TAG) is a program that gives students and faculty the opportunity to experience and enhance life in other parts of the world. This past summer a team of 12 traveled to Gdansk, Poland, to help with repairs at a local school and coffee shop run by Nazarene missionaries. Another team visited Nicaragua, where they held a vacation Bible school for the children and handed out medical supplies to the village. This school year students have the opportunity to travel to and minister in Memphis, Jamaica, Nicaragua, and Peru. When Trevecca students reach out into the world, there will always be a change: in our views, in the way we live, and in the way we reach out again.

Attending a Christian college provides special opportunities for students who seek to draw closer to God. Chapel is designed so that every student has a chance to experience God and to seek God's will for their lives when they participate in worship. Chapel is offered four times a week: Didache on Monday nights emphasizes teaching and discussion; Koinonia on Tuesday and Thursday offers worship and a message, and Kerygma on Wednesday features student preaching and participation in communion. Each explores and emphasizes different acts of worship.

Journey into Wholeness, this year's theme, stressed ways for students to live fulfilling lives. Spiritual Deepening Week with Rick Harvey, the relationship series with Michael Christian and Marnie Feree and Jan Harvey, and the "Wholeness and Alcohol" hot topic discussion with President Boone were a few of the many different chapels that communicated to students that a life lived with Christ is a whole and satisfying one.

KING'S KIDS

A weekly retreat for many neighborhood kids

A few of the girls from King's Kids smile for the camera before getting ready to head back home after a fun night with college students.

Trevecca has many programs to address different needs—here and around the world. For years, King's Kids, a student-led effort, has been reaching into the neighborhood surrounding the campus and touching the lives of children who deserve Christian influences and positive role models. This year's leaders, Theresa Jones and Nicole Croford, are passionate about meeting the needs of children in the Trevecca neighborhood. They have enlisted many volunteers who are dedicated to making sure the children are exposed to God's love through Bible stories, crafts, and games and by witnessing their enthusiasm about God's will for their lives. They lead 100 children each Tuesday night for a VBS-like event. The team also plans special treats for the holidays, including Trunk or Treat and a Thanksgiving dinner. The leaders hope to increase the number of their volunteers so that King's Kids can reach even more children. "We believe God has great things in store for King's Kids," confidently states Theresa, as she and the rest of the team pray that God will bring in more kids next year.

At Trevecca, it is understood that students long to have a closer relationship with God but find it difficult, between classes and studying, to give him an hour of their time. Merge, a small, student-led Bible study group, was created in the hopes that if the students are allowed to meet when they decide they can relationships will grow and become stronger, not only with God, but also with others in their group. Merge is laid-back, with each group given the freedom to pick what members want to focus on. This year there were 23 Merge groups meeting together, each one different, yet focusing on the same core idea that each binds each one together: that while we are unworthy, God still extends his love to us. With each meeting we students remind each other of this fact and support one another each week as we continue to walk God's path for our lives.

MERGE

A weekly break to just relax and re-focus on God

Though Merge is a fun chilled time, it can be spiritually motivating. It can be a relief to have fellow students and Merge members to gather around you and pray with and for you.

Merge groups are a time to just relax and have fun while focusing some time on God and his word. Even the Bible can be really exciting if you let it.

"I learned what freedom really looked like from our TAG trip to Jamaica. It was a freedom that didn't worry and didn't judge. It had no knowledge of social standings. It was a freedom that could only come from God's love. I would highly recommend going on a TAG trip to anyone!"

- Katie Gibson

This TAG trip to Jamaica was my first missions trip, and I couldn't have asked for any better experience. It was challenging physically, emotionally, and definitely spiritually. The people in Jamaica are wonderful and have left a lasting impression on me. I'll be going back to Jamaica soon, for sure.

SPRING TAG TRIP

Spending spring break serving in Jamaica, mon!

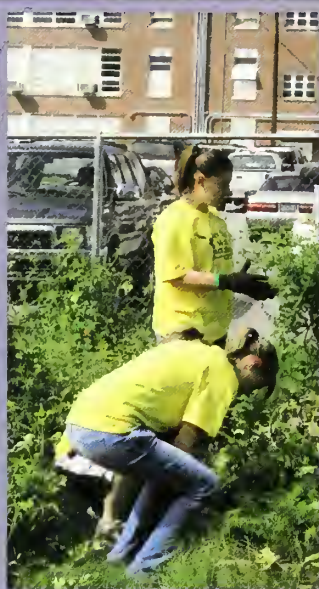

This spring a group of Trevecca students spent their spring break helping and serving a few of the many needs in Jamaica. The team consisted of Vera Pendergraft, Hilary Frame, Delaina Lantz, Katie Gibson, Jotham Miller, Scottia Davis, Jonathan Hopper, Chelsea Brown, Danielle Kelly, Tiffany Thornton, Erin Greer, Seth Thompson, and Amy Murphy.

Trevecca students and faculty who participated in a mission trip to Jamaica during spring break said that God's work can be done any time of the year, not just during the summer. The team traveled to Frome, where they worked with other teams on a medical center that was near completion. They stayed in the home of the district superintendent of the West Jamaica District and his wife. They also spent time with area children where they were staying. Bringing with them kites, sidewalk chalk, and bubbles, the group ministered to the kids by spending time with them and sharing in their joy at the simple toys. During their free time, they visited the Negril beach, where they snorkeled, visited a local craft fair, and went cliff jumping.

About her experience in Jamaica, Vera Pendergraft expressed her awe of the people she met: "We met the most honest and vulnerable, yet humbling people. We sat through a four-hour church service Sunday morning, and while we glanced at the clock every five minutes, the people surrounding us gave it all to God. They dedicated the entire day to him with a full understanding that they are completely dependent on him. You always hear that those with nothing give all they have, but it doesn't really hit you until you see it for yourself. It doesn't sink in until you see a man who can barely stand up in church walking a mile down the road just to get there or until you sit down to eat a meal prepared by a man who doesn't always have enough to feed himself."

Ministry to those outside of Trevecca has been an integral part of its students' lives for many years. This year, Jerry Romasco, the student chaplain, added new projects to the usual ones, such as Habitat for Humanity. Through the addition of the Social Justice Program, students have had many opportunities for other projects to help others; one big project was the effort to provide personal hygiene kits to be sent to Haiti after the earthquake. At the beginning of the spring semester, Jerry supervised the Week of Service, a week of service opportunities that included Creation Care/Prayer Walk, Carry Your Cross, and service to the Towers. The projects gave students ways to show care and concern for others. Jerry Romasco summed up the projects' importance: "Relationships are formed, whether that is with someone we are serving or the earth. The process simply is there is something that we can do to help, so from there we get the word out. A service project is worth it when the faith participants have adhered to is made flesh and they can touch, smell, taste, see and/or hear it."

What is your view on life?

My view on life is to be smile, laugh, be happy, and enjoy all the little things that come my way!

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

There are so many amazing memories to choose from, but I would have to say my favorite this year would have to be either the Paint Wars or Trojan Idol! Chucking paint at people was a blast, and watching my peers rock out was amazing!

What is your view on life?

Our calling in life is "the place where your deep gladness meets the world's deep need."

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

My favorite memory here at Trevecca is just meeting the people I call my friends. These past four years I have met some of the greatest people, whom I know will be my friends as long as I live. I have learned so much from them, and they will never know how grateful I am for their being in my life. We have laughed, cried, celebrated, loved, and created memories that will always be remembered. I love you guys so much!

Ashley Cauthen

What is your view on life?

My view on life is to be positive, love without condition, see the good and potential in everyone, and never leave the house without undereye concealer and mascara.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

My favorite memory at Trevecca was in 2007. The skies were clear as everyone piled in Benson Auditorium for Mr. TNU. After it was over and we all came outside, everything was white! Everyone ran out and immediately started playing the snow. It was so fun and unexpected.

I have way too many favorites to name. But specifically, I think of one night at the very beginning of sophomore year when we got together for a night game of ultimate Frisbee. We told everyone, expecting that not too many would show up. We were way wrong. We had more than sixty people come out to play. It was ridiculous.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

This year's been amazing at TNU! I became president of SIFE and got involved on campus through RHA, Social Life, and Student Marketing Group. From Mount Johnson at the Homecoming Parade to Sushi Thursdays, "Date" night with Boo Boo, singing at Benson Brew, driving around downtown with JO Hall girls blasting the music/hollering, and sharing JO Hall with only ONE other person for a week during Christmas Break! God has taught me love this year and has allowed me to open up to the wonderful people/opportunities around me!

My favorite Trevecca memory is going to the Good Morning America concert at the CMAs. It started off with us leaving Trevecca ridiculously early and getting coffee at Dunkin' Donuts. After Dunkin', we proceeded to the concert and waited around for a few hours, talking to each other about various topics. When it was about time for the concert to start, they took some crowd shots which they showed live on GMA. The camera taking the shots of the crowd was about a yard away from me, looking directly at my face as it panned over the crowd. It got several good shots of me as it passed over my head. That was a long day, but it was well worth it hanging out with people and having my face on national television.

What is your view on life?

Life is like a classroom; there are so many lessons to learn from the hand of God.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

My favorite time at Trevecca was my freshman year, fall semester, when powder puff started up. Our team, "Puff Puff Pass," made purple shirts with our numbers, and we painted our faces with purple face paint. Yeah, we weren't that good, but we knew how to break a girl's hand (sorry Kourtney Yonge) and play until we hurt ourselves, lol (Caroline). The dance parties before our games to get hyped were epic—loud music, amazing friends. College can't get much better than that.

Kristin Hall

What is your view on life?

Life is something that should be cherished and lived as though every day is your last, and I try doing this through love, friendships, and especially God's strength.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

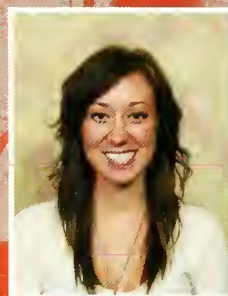

The great lifelong friends that I have made here at Trevecca have been amazing, and Celebrity Skate Night is probably my favorite part so far. Anything that involves dressing up crazy and being with my friends are moments that I will always treasure.

What is your view on life?

My view on life is to enjoy every minute of it and always have fun.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

My favorite memory of this year would be a toss up between the TNU-Cumberland soccer game with the overtime win and the first weekend of snow we had when I went fishing in the cascades.

Kristin Lester

What is your view on life?

I like to take life as it comes and enjoy every minute of it!

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

One of my favorite memories of being at Trevecca actually happened at the beginning of the year. One of the Johnson Hall RAs (Amanda Crummer), one other resident of Johnson Hall, and I went puddle jumping in the pouring rain. By the time we came back inside, we were completely soaked.

What is your view on life?

Live every day as if it's your last, because one day, you'll be right.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

If I had to rattle off a few memorable Trevecca moments, I would have to go with being ornery, laughing until I pee my pants a little, and Katelyn Congemi, because she is rad.

Kyle Peterman

What is your view on life?

To live for God and follow his direction for my life.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

The day it snowed and school was cancelled. A bunch of us went out by the Middendorff's house and went sledding. This was also the time I bailed out of the tub we were riding in and rammed into a tree.

What is your view on life?

I feel like I am so privileged to have been given the opportunity to live, to make and keep friends, to help those who can't help themselves, and love others the way God loves us.

What is your favorite Trevecca memory?

My favorite memory of being here at Trevecca so far has been living in the dorms. I only have a brother, so I never had that sisterhood bond that's become so prevalent in my life. It's just been absolutely amazing to be able to look up to the older girls in the dorm and be able to learn from them!

Men's Soccer

New leadership for a new season

The men's soccer team began this year under new leadership. Danny Leavy became the new head coach after Jeff Carr, who coached for four seasons, took a position at another college. The men's soccer team had its first win in September against Brescia University. With a 6-10-1 season record, the men entered the TranSouth Quarter Finals and lost in the first round against Cumberland. Seven players were named TranSouth Scholar-Athletes, including Craig Parker and Benji Bussell, the second time for each man. Parker Hughes was named TranSouth Scholar-Athlete for the third time. Benji Bussell and Hayden Coffman were named to the TranSouth Second Team.

Women's Soccer

Second best finish in Trevecca's history

Kassie Evick

Last year's Trevecca's women's soccer team had no seniors to step up as natural leaders; this year, with returning seniors Amy Maslyn, Kassie Evick, Allison Casalenuovo, Brittany Argabright, and Jessi Fallen, the balance was restored. During training they focused on playing with a team mentality and playing up each member's strengths. The freshman class brought in some top recruits for the team. Coach Brett Armstrong was pleased with the changes in the team, additions who played "at a high skill level and with great intensity."

The team finished fifth in its conference with seven wins, second best in Trevecca history. Kassie Evick set new school records for goals in a season, goals in a career, points (goals + assists) in a season and points in a career. Two players, Evick and Casalenuovo, were named to the All-TranSouth Second Team. Five members were named TranSouth Players of the Week and five earned the NAIA Scholar-Athlete Awards.

The women's team joins in prayer with their opponents following the game.

CORNER

"Our slogan for the season was 2009 Making History. We had as our goal to be the first team in TNU's volleyball history to advance to nationals. Although we fell short of our goal, we still made history in a lot of ways.

We took second place in the conference for the first time in quite a few years, we had a 25-win season and played against many ranked opponents along the way, we had six players named to the TS all-conference team, and we had seven players named to the TS all-scholar team. Our biggest accomplishments were not these x and o accomplishments but rather that we grew as a family, truly loved each other, and represented our university and program with solid character. It is my hope that we will continue to improve our efforts and positive attitude, that we will strive to have team first attitudes, and that we will realize that champions are made in the offseason, and that we put the necessary effort into the offseason to become GREAT."

Volleyball

Hard work pays off as the team places second in the conference tournament

Coach Jayme Crowley entered her second year as head coach of the Trevecca volleyball team feeling more confident about her position and more comfortable with the team and players' mentality. Coach Crowley began to implement change last spring by starting to train earlier and having the setters train specifically in their area. As one part of the team improved, the whole team improved. Team members came into the season in excellent condition from training camp and ready to show a different side of the team to the school and to their competition. Their first win was against Mountain State College in Wilmore, Kentucky. They ended their regular season with a 23-11 record and earned the second seed in the TranSouth Conference Tournament, which was held at Trevecca. The defeated Martin Methodist and Bethel but were defeated in the semifinals by Union. "It has been an extremely fun year, and I love my volleyball girls so very much," commented Coach Crowley on their excellent season.

Quotable Quote

Men's Basketball

Young team shows improvement throughout the season

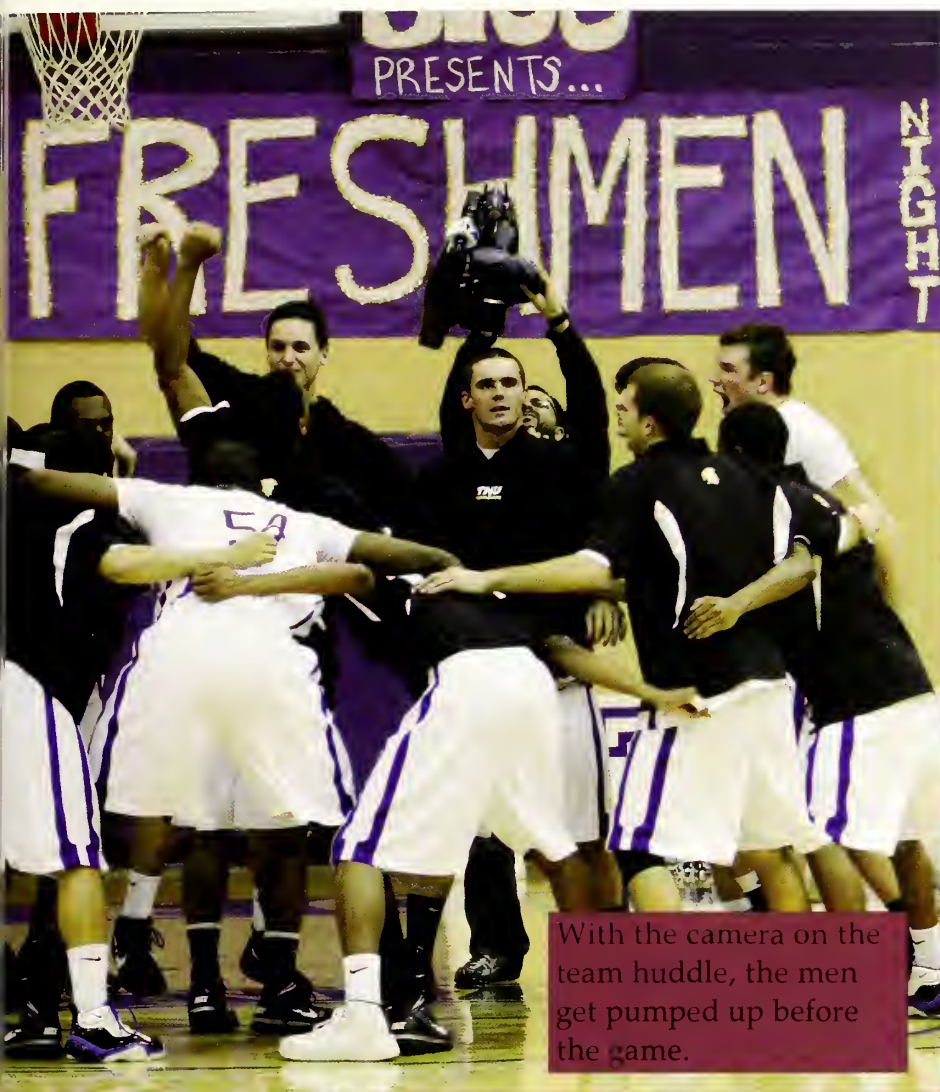

Basketball season is the highlight of the sports year at Trevecca, and the 2009-2010 season was no different. The season kicked off during Homecoming weekend with the men's game against Point Loma Nazarene University.

The men went 5-0 during their first five games before losing to Cedarville University. They entered the TranSouth Tournament Quarterfinals as the #4 seed and hosted Cumberland. The season ended when they fell to Cumberland, losing by only seven points; senior Matt Elliott scored a record high of 31 points during that game. They ended the season 21-10.

Matt Elliott and Michael France were chosen as members of the TranSouth All-American First Team, and Marquise Rudolph was chosen to be a part of the TranSouth All-American Freshman Team. Camden Jordan, John Hardin, and Matt Elliott were named TranSouth Scholar-Athletes, and Elliott was named a scholar-athlete by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

With the camera on the team huddle, the men got pumped up before the game.

Women's Basketball

Return to the NAIA Sweet 16 once again

The Lady Trojan basketball team began its season with the domination of Tennessee Temple at Homecoming. The women were 3-0 before losing to Oklahoma Christian.

The women had a successful season and ended it with a 22-11 record. They racked up two victories over rival Cumberland. Going into the NAIA Tournament for the eleventh consecutive year, Trevecca was ranked #19. The women scored an upset against William Woods and advanced to the Sweet 16, where they were defeated by Campbellsville University.

This year the Lady Trojans, along with thirteen other teams, purchased t-shirts in support of 147 Million Orphans, an organization dedicated to changing the lives of orphans. With the contributions of these teams, the organization was able to feed 800 orphans.

When asked about what had been at the heart of the team this year, Coach Van Atta said, "We had a specific focus for this year's team that was developed by our players. It was derived from Proverbs 14:23: 'All hard work brings a profit, but mere talk leads only to poverty.' Instead of 'talking about it' they wanted to 'be about it.' These girls didn't merely talk about the goals they wanted to achieve; they worked everyday to be able to achieve them."

Cheering on the the Trevecca Trojans all year round

Basketball games are highlights of campus life at Trevecca, and the Trevecca cheerleaders work hard in order to increase the excitement of the games. From their position at the end of the court, they encourage the crowd to scream louder and clap harder. This year's cheerleading team had more members, new uniforms, new routines and dance numbers, and more stunts to increase the crowd's enjoyment. The team began training as soon as school began, and members practiced every Wednesday. They attended every home game to support the men's and women's basketball teams, and they attended the game at Cumberland.

Tryouts are held in April for returning students, and incoming freshmen and transfer students audition at the beginning of the school year. This summer the squad plans to host a cheer camp for middle-school students and a university-level cheer camp. Coach Mary Lou Del Rio said, "This year has been one of many challenges; however, the squad continued to work together to provide a quality program for Trevecca fans."

Men's Golf

Excellent progress building on last year's success

Though the team had no seniors returning this year, the men's golf team made excellent progress and built on last year's success. At its first invitational in Kentucky, the team came in eighth out of fourteen teams and then continued this momentum by earning first at the Greystone Cup held by Union University. The team ended its second invitational in second place at Kentucky. During the two-day TranSouth Tournament, the team made a significant jump from fifth to third, where it remained for the tournament. Trevecca's David Saldana and Joey Bradley tied for second in the tournament, only three shots behind the winner.

Women find a permanent home for consistent practices

The beginning of the Lady Trojan's golf team season this year was marked by the accomplishment of finding a permanent home. Old Hickory Country Club allowed Trevecca to have consistent practices on its course and to hold tournaments there. The women began their season by coming in second at the Walsh Invitational in Ohio. Noting that the team had two returning seniors and a sophomore and two freshmen, Coach Johnson stated that the team bonded well and learned a new appreciation for their teammates. This year the team finished in second at the TranSouth Tournament, overcome by Bethel University. At the NAIA National Tournament Qualifier, the team placed sixth out of ten teams, and Betsy Beaver placed tenth overall out of 47 golfers. Coach Johnson summed up the season: "Each year brings its own set of opportunities for growth, this year was kind of a transitional year in some ways. Even though I'll miss Betsy and Alyssa, knowing that Ashley, Maddie, and Whitney will be here to welcome our new players next fall helps me look forward to next fall already."

A challenging season after replacing every starter from the previous year

The men's baseball team had a tough beginning this year, losing its first four games. The team quickly rallied with a nine-game winning streak, which jump-started their enthusiasm for the season. The team concluded the season with a 29-23 record. Chase Birdwell, Mark Hewitt, Caleb Longshore, Jacobie Olin, and Chris Sutherland were named TranSouth Scholar-Athletes. For Sutherland, it was his third time to receive this honor. Coach Jonathan Burton recapped the team's year: "This season has been one of the most challenging seasons since I have been here as a player, assistant coach, and now a head coach. Having to replace every starter from a season ago has been a challenge in itself. We hope that we have laid the groundwork to get ourselves back in a familiar area which is competing for conference championships."

2010 NAIA TranSouth Tournament champions

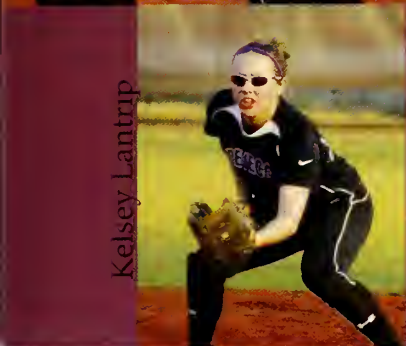

The women's softball team's off-season practice began earlier than usual this year, with the same goals as in other years: improving skills, building bonds, and the chemistry that would take the team to a new level. Two new assistant coaches were added to the staff this year: Mike Pruitt and former player Brittiany Johnson. The only senior, Megan Hemmingsen, was named co-captain, along with Karli Rush, and together they provided solid leadership for the team. The women started the season with a 15-game winning streak before losing to William Carey. They ended their regular season with a 41-15 record and entered the TranSouth Tournament as the top-seed. They fought their way to the championship, where they outlasted Bethel University and won their fourth TranSouth Tournament title in the last five years. They played in the NAIA National Tournament in late May.

Coach Tyree reported that the team was able to increase its speed this season and also has become one of Trevecca's best-hitting teams, with all of its players hitting at least one home run.

Summer Ministry Team

Reaching the youth of the southeast

During the summer, teens flock to camp, hoping to forget about responsibilities for a week or two. At this same time, Trevecca students who are willing to give up part of their vacation go to these camps to invest their time in the teens. Trevecca's Summer Ministry Teams help teens build friendships with college students and bridge the gap between those two stages in life. During the summer, selected Trevecca students travel to different camps throughout the Southeast in an effort to create relationships with the teens. They participate in activities, lead small groups, and are there to help campers. In their ministry efforts, SMT members show the campers what kind of people Trevecca students are: confident men and women who live to serve God.

RAs and RHA

Resident Assistants and Resident Hall Association

Students who live on campus can become so immersed in their studies and classes that they fail to develop in other areas of life. The resident assistants (RAs) in the campus residences work to prevent that kind of failure. RA applicants undergo a rigorous selection process because their work is so important to campus life. Each RA is responsible for building community in his or her assigned area, for fostering relationships with the residents in those areas, for planning and executing educational and social events for those residents, and for encouraging residents to form and participate in MERGE groups. In addition to their role in promoting social and educational events, RAs also monitor their areas, ensuring that residents are safe and secure.

In their efforts to improve students' social lives and to provide additional educational experiences for students, RAs are assisted by the Resident Hall Association (RHA), whose members are elected by the residents in their respective dorms or apartments. The RHA Executive Committee, another important part of the RA/RHA system, produces and distributes the "Stall Street Journal," a publication that is intended to inform students about campus events and opportunities.

The social and informative events created and sponsored by the RAs and the RHA make campus life more enjoyable for on-campus students.

Trevecca's campus newspaper, TrevEchoes, publishes a new issue monthly, filled with current information, reviews, and events. This year was the paper's 64th volume. Campus events included articles about Trevecca's Homecoming, with a special section about alumni memories, Welcome Week, Seussical, Trojan Idol, and other major happenings.

Jalaine Weller returned for her second year as editor-in-chief and developed a staff of 12. They put a special emphasis on the people who make up Trevecca, conducting interviews with athletes and graduate students. Darda

Making lasting memories for the student body

Members of the Darda staff work hard every year to record memories and events—so that each year remains special in the eyes of the people who experienced it. This year's theme, Rough around the Edges, reminds us that all persons, no matter how they look or how they do in school, have some rough parts and that college helps us polish those edges.

Seven members had previous service on the Darda staff. Rachel Brenneman returned to serve as editor for the third year. Kevin Wilkerson, assistant editor, also served his third year on the staff. Other members who have served previously are Leah Averette, Dana Franchetti, Orien

Henry, and Bethany Hill.

The staff works hard to make sure each that the Darda is an accurate history of a year in the life of Trevecca. Darda has the important job of helping students and alumni remember their years at Trevecca so that nothing is forgotten.

Trevecca's campus life couldn't function without Student Government Association's (SGA) balancing the business side of government and the fun side of a college atmosphere. The school year began early for SGA with the Leadership Summit. Together with RAs, RHA, and peer mentors, SGA created a vision statement for the student leaders: "We are Trevecca, continually seeking God's vision, striving to be unified as a family in Christ. Living to love, inspire, and serve; living as authentically and passionately as Christ, through God's grace. We are part of God's Vision. We are one. We are Trevecca Nazarene University."

SGA was excited to bring back old favorites—Trojan Idol, Friday Night Live, Thrift Store Prom Night, and Songwriter's Challenge. SGA put a new twist on the traditional Welcome Week celebration by including a fiesta birthday party for President Boone and a trip to Nashville Shores. Along with changes to their activities, SGA restructured the class councils to reflect the positions of executive council so that there could be direct communication between the corresponding positions.

Seussical

Fall Drama

The annual productions of the drama department always please the campus, and no one was disappointed this year. Seussical the Musical, with characters from some of Dr. Seuss's most famous and beloved stories, was a sold-out hit with students, faculty, and local school groups. More than 1,500 public school children flocked to the show, drawn in by the the Cat in the Hat and Horton the Elephant.

The play centers on Horton, played by Cameron Culver, who hears a voice coming from a clover, on which lives the small city of Whoville. Horton is persecuted by the other jungle creatures, who decide that he is crazy. The only one who believes him is his neighbor, Gertrude McFuzz, portrayed by Cassie Hamilton. Narrating the story is the famous Cat in the Hat, played by T. J. Adams.

Combining the rhyme scheme for which the Dr. Seuss classics are famous, astounding costumes and make-up, and props from active imaginations, members of the drama department outdid themselves at every turn. The show's success could be measured by loud laughs and the number of children with smiling faces. The cast proved that the world cannot erase dreams that come to life.

Top: The people of Whoville wonder what that sound is that is not coming from Whoville.

Right: General Schmitz (Nathan Curry) prepares the boy (Samantha McDonald) for military school.

Gertrude McFuzz (Cassie Hamilton), Sour Knagaroo (Amanda Daughtry), and the rest of the Cadets gang up on Horton and his speck of dust.

"Seussical was a great experience because we were able to entertain audiences of all ages and build friendships that will always bring back great memories."
-Darren Bryant

"Being a part of Seussical has been an amazing experience. I'm so glad I got the opportunity to show the school my abilities. I hope to be a part of many more shows in the future."
-Samantha McDonald

"Just as I treasured that broken unicorn as Jim O'Connor, so also will I treasure the fun times we had as a cast and crew and the wonderful memories that we made together over the course of the show."

-Nathan Curry

"It was a great opportunity being cast in such a small play and to be able to build close relationships with everyone who worked with and in the play."

-Mica Massie

The Glass Menagerie

Spring Drama Proudution

Trevecca's drama department stunned its audience once again—but in a brand new way. Department head and play director Jeff Frame chose to begin the spring drama season with The Glass Menagerie, a play with an extremely small cast and a seating arrangement that many audience members had not experienced before. Frame chose it not only because it offers a new experience for both actors and audience but because it addresses timeless themes that speak to all ages.

The play attendance was small, a change which was both planned and unplanned. Planned because the seating in the round permitted only a small audience at each performance. Unplanned because Nashville's biggest snow of the season occurred on opening night, and only students who live on campus could get to the performance. Frame confessed his desire for the intimacy of a smaller crowd, saying that the small audience and centrally located stage would make attendees feel as though they were a part of the performance.

Speaking to all who attended, Jeff Frame said, "I often ask what kind of 'redemption,' if any, comes down to us from what most of us consider to be the great canon of modern American masterpieces for the stage. [Tennessee] Williams's plays are among those I question. And yet, in that urgent 'need to tell'—the cleansing, the purging which comes from passing on our stories—there is a kind of redemption in the telling.

"Certainly this play testifies to that odd but familiar coupling of loss and hope together—a cautionary tale of self-preservation and unfulfilled dreams; on the one hand; a story of love, tangible sacrifice, and hope on the other. TNU's production this year embraced both in order that we might grow in the wrestling and, in the end, thrive."

Top: Amanda (Cassie Hamilton) and Tom (T. J. Adams) dream of what is the building across the street with all its beautiful lights at night.

Right: Tom (T. J.), Laura (Mica), and Amanda (Cassie) have a heated discussion about Tom's plans after work.

EverPraise and Refuge

Leading worship across the region

Trevecca is represented and presented in different ways, and the University's two public relations groups—EverPraise and Refuge—serve important roles in the effort to raise awareness of Trevecca through ministry. Both groups minister and serve at many Church of the Nazarene events—for district gatherings, at church camps, in local church services, and at other events.

EverPraise is a vocal ensemble composed of eight persons, and Refuge is a seven-person praise and worship band. Selected by audition, members of each group must be skilled in music and public speaking, must have a passion for ministry, and must maintain their academic standing.

To many young persons in Churches of the Nazarene in the Southeast, EverPraise and Refuge are the faces of Trevecca.

Refuge and EverPraise are excited about what the year has in store for them.

"PR has been a rollercoaster ride, full of opportunities I would not have had otherwise, and I am very grateful to be part of EverPraise!"
-Scott Engleman

"PR is one of those unforgettables. The relationships we made and the things we experienced will always be a part of us. To know that we are expected to represent something bigger than ourselves is a huge responsibility, but I've learned so much, and I wouldn't trade the experience for anything."
-Andrea Corzine

TIA

Trevecca Intramural Association

Trevecca Intramural Association (TIA) offers sports opportunities outside of the University's intercollegiate program. TIA is able to provide a unique set of activities that includes among other games dodgeball, wiffleball, flag football, ultimate Frisbee, and sand volleyball. To kick off the school year, Josh Mackens, the TIA commissioner, set up the traditional all-school game of dodgeball during Welcome Week. He also put together a one-night-only game of speed kickball.

Throughout the year, for the traditional sports, students signed their teams up on the ICE page before each season began. After the sign-up deadline the schedule was made and a list of games were posted each week. At the end of the seasons, tournaments were held to determine the champions. The flag football and basketball leagues are always the most popular; this year they each had more than 20 teams. In fact, flag football participation was up almost 50 percent. A B-league was also added to flag football for those students who do not like to play as competitively as others.

At each championship game Kevin Wilkerson and Ben Wheat were guest announcers. They often gave a play-by-play, interviewed participants, and kept the crowd's attention. Students always looked forward to the championship games whether they got to play or just watch their friends compete.

Josh Mackens explained the importance of TIA this way: "TIA is life because that's definitely the mantra that most participants carry around with them, or so you would think by their demeanor."

Mackens also wanted to add a special thank you to all those who helped make TIA possible this year—especially Jeff Byler, Johnna Hill, Adam Crum, Michael Stocks, Jacob Shackley, and Nathan Brenneman.

Students Aid in Flood Relief Efforts

When Nashville was flooded the first weekend of May, Trevecca students went to work to meet the needs of those displaced by the flood waters. Working with Hands-on Nashville and the Red Cross, they helped community members set up a shelter in Bellevue Middle School and staffed it around the clock from its opening on Sunday evening, May 2. They continued to work that shelter in six-hour shifts. They also helped in the shelter operated by Lipscomb University. Another group helped the Church of the Nazarene in Gallatin move furniture after its building was flooded that weekend. In the afternoon they assisted at the shelter operated by the Shriner's Temple.

A group of students worked throughout the week in the Chestnut Hill neighborhood directly behind Trevecca. They gutted apartments, cleaned out houses, and sorted through the food at Star Ministries. Aside from the local community, students helped professors and fellow classmates whose houses were also affected by the flood.

With their classes cancelled and even as exams resumed, students used their free time to volunteer wherever they were needed as the City of Nashville began its recovery efforts from the weekend flooding.

REFINED EDGES

The 2009-2010 school year is coming to a close, and I would venture to say that no one person is the same as he or she was at the beginning of the year. Each person is a little more refined in some form or fashion. Whether we want to admit it or not, we have all grown and changed in various ways as the year has progressed.

As your yearbook editor, I thank you for giving me the chance to serve you for the past three years. College years are some of the best of your life, and I appreciate your letting me be a part. I hope that you look back on this book for years to come and remember all the good times we had here at good ole' TNU. Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors, I wish you the best of luck as you continue on your journey through college. Seniors, we made it! Congratulations! May God bless you as he leads you on a new journey, wherever that may be and whatever that may look like. Faculty and staff, thank you for working to make our college years the best they could possibly be. We may still be a little ROUGH AROUND THE EDGES, but everything you have taught us and all the things we have encountered throughout this school year have shaped us into the people we are today. I pray that God will continue to shape us and refine our rough edges as we encounter new experiences each day.

General Information

The 2010 Darda was printed by Herff Jones, Inc., who published 650 copies of this 180-page yearbook. Mary Harris was our representative.

Student photographs were taken by Elizabeth Streight. Candid photos were taken by Elizabeth Streight, Orien Henry, and other contributors. Sports photos were taken by Greg Ruff. All of the copy for the yearbook was written by Bethany Hill with the exception of the opening and closing copy which was written by Rachel Brenneman. The stories in the people section were submitted by the students. All pages were produced on Dell computers using Adobe InDesign CS4 and Photoshop CS4 and were proofread by yearbook sponsor Jan Greathouse.

Thank you faculty, staff, and students for your support of the staff and the 2010 Darda.
